SEASONABLE HINTS

Although the spring at this time is unusually backward, farmers must not stop to complain, but see that their tools and machinery are in perfect order, so that when the warm sunny days do come, they will not be obliged to lose several days which cannot be gained for the whole season. They should conduct their affairs so as to have no regrets. Those pursuing other vocations can perform their work almost any time, and sometimes succeed, but the farmer cannot. The Lord of the seasons has confined him to the observance of natural laws, and he must regard them, or all will be barren about him. If he does not sow at the proper time, he cannot reap. Some farmers of our acquaintance have been living upon regrets for the last twenty years. Every spring regretting that they did not set an orchard twenty years ago, set currant bushes, raspberries, strawberries and introduce a few choice flowers, when a wife or a daughter—now saints in heaven—urged it many years ago. The farmer must be prepared to commit his seed to the soil when their germination and growth will receive the most influence from the peculiarities of the season to which they are adapted, unless so committed they will not be in a condition to receive the greatest benefit from the succeeding seasons of growth and ripening. Delay in the preparation of the soil, and sowing at the right time, will delay throughout the season. Be not discouraged because the sunny days come tardily, alternating with days of storm, when the chill East wind fills the air. There is a perfume of roses about these first warm days in the unconfirmed spring all the more enjoyable because of the sharp contrasts that precede and follow them.

KEY-BOARD INSTRUMENTS PRECEDING THE PIANO

The clavicitherium, or keyed cithara, appearing about the year 1300, was a box with a cover. It had catgut strings, and keys which simply lifted the plectra for striking the strings. The clavichord, also called monochord and clarichord, had brass strings, which were struck by a brass wedge called a tangent; this wedge partly lifted the string, thus forming practically a second bridge so long as the key was held down. Staccato passages were well rendered by it, and by further depressing the key after the blow, had been struck the tangent could be made to further lift the string, thus tightening it and raising its pitch, so as to give greater prominence to the melody. Mozart carried a clavichord as part of his baggage, and Bach—whose "well-tempered clavichord" is a familiar title—preferred it to the piano, which he did not live to see developed. One biographer says that "he found it the most convenient for the expression of his most refined thoughts."

Next came—immediately preceding the piano—the virginal, the spinet, and the harpsichord. They had brass strings, but the plectra were quills fastened in pieces of wood called jacks, this latter name being still retained in the piano "action." The movement of the quill was a nibbing of the string, it rose up past the string, freeing it, and there remained until taking the finger from the key allowed it to drop. The spinet differed little from the virginal. The harpsichord was of larger size, and sometimes had two key-boards. The name virginal is associated by some with hymns to the Virgin, by others it is supposed to have been given in compliment to Queen Elizabeth. At least the instrument was very popular in England. Henry VIII. delighted in playing it. His daughters Mary and Elizabeth, as well as Mary of Scotland, were players of it, and items for repairing virginals and giving instruction on them appeared frequently in the memoranda of royal expenses. A book alleged to have been Elizabeth's virginal book, and an instrument alleged to have been her virginal, are still preserved. A poem descriptive of the public entry of Queen Anne, wife of James VI., into Edinburgh, May 19, 1590, mentions that "viols and virginalls were their." Spenser speaks of his beloved as "playing alone careless on her heavenlie virginals," and Shakspeare, in a sonnet, mentions "those jacks that nimble leap to kiss the tender inward of thy hand," and of "those dancing chips o'er whom thy fingers walk with gentle gait."

In appearance the virginal resembled a very small piano; sometimes it was made without legs, and a few small specimens resemble a large music-box.

The leading instrument in the last century was the harpsichord. Its compass was extended to five octaves. Its shape was almost exactly that of the grand piano. Many ingenious makers devoted themselves to it, adding sets of wires, sets of quills, duplicate key-boards, complicated devices for imitating orchestral instruments. It reached the utmost development possible, while missing the discovery of a better implement than the crow quill and jack. Frederick the Great had one made for him in London at a cost of two hundred guineas; its bridges, pedals, and frame were silver, its front was tortoise-shell, and its case was inlaid. A harpsichord by Hans Ruckers—claimed to have been Handel's, although the claim is contested—is preserved in London. It is six feet eight inches long, three feet high, and three wide, with two manuals of about five octaves each; the case in deal, black and japanned; the sounding-board is ornamented, and the lid bears inscriptions in Latin on the under side.—JULIUS WILCOX, in Harper's Magazine for May.

A WOMAN'S VIEW OF THE WOMAN QUESTION.—We are not our brothers' keepers, nor are our brothers our keepers. As to the woman question, why not let of the woman question? Why make a man-question of it? Women are competent to decide on their own course of action. A woman can tell right from wrong. A woman is as likely to know what is womanly, as a man is. Why does man step in to decide for her? That's what puzzles me. I am not at all particular about voting, but what I am particular about is, to know why I do not know as well as a man does, whether it is right for me to vote, or to "speak ... in meeting," or to do anything ... Don't suppose, now, that I wish to do any ... these things. ... doubt you? ... between ... private business. ... A. M. ...

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

The total shipments of shoes from Auburn, last week was 1591 cases, (one hundred less than the previous week, and 550 cases in excess of the shipments for the corresponding week of last year.) Several factories cannot keep up with orders. Messrs. E. F. Packard & Co. have shut down temporarily, and M. Crafts & Co. have partly shut down.

About seven o'clock Thursday evening, as Mr. Green and family of Lewiston, were leaving the residence of Dr. French, his little girl stepped from the piazza, falling about a foot and a half. On reaching home it was found that she had broken the bone of her left arm. It was set at once, and she is now comfortable.

The heaviest beef brought into Lewiston market for a long time, was a pair of Governor Garcelon's oxen, which were bought by Wallingford & Hersey. The pair weighed when dressed, 2,860 pounds, and spoke well for the Governor's farm.

Auburn paid $10 844 for teachers last year.

The News says that Sunday evening a lady residing in Bridgton called at a friend's house. She went in at the door of the wood-shed, and while endeavoring to close the door, fell backwards into a cellar, some five or six feet, striking her head on the stone foundation. She was senseless for a moment, and when extricated the blood was flowing freely from the gash, and other slight bruises were sustained.

The Portland Argus says: A deep feeling of sadness was cast over Bowdoin college by the announcement made by Prof. Chapman at prayers Friday morning of the sudden death of Mr. Artemus F. Gregg, a student at the college. Mr. Gregg for some time had suffered great physical pain and to alleviate his suffering was accustomed to take chloroform. Thursday night his room-mate, Mr. Jewett who had been out of town, returned by the midnight train, and on going to his room saw Mr. Gregg lying upon the bed as he supposed asleep, but on investigation he found that the body was cold. Dr. Mitchell was hastily summoned and upon examination found that life had been extinct about two hours and that death was caused by an overdose of chloroform. Mr. Gregg was born at Buckfield, May 27, 1853 and was consequently nearing his 26th birthday. He was a member of the sophomore class and also of the Alpha Delta Phi Society. Since entering college Mr. Gregg had entered the Methodist Episcopal church of Brunswick. In that society he was an active member and his loss will be deeply felt. College duties were suspended and an extra session was held in the chapel at 10½ o'clock, from whence the remains were escorted to the depot and sent to his relatives at Buckfield.

The store of Mr. Geo. E. Weston at Freeport, was entered Thursday evening, and watches and jewelry stolen to the amount of $200. The thieves entered the store by means of boards leaned against the back side of the building. The robbery was evidently made by some person well acquainted with the premises. This is by no means the first affair of the kind in that quiet village within the last few years, and no detection.

Tobias Roberts is erecting at Bar Harbor a genuine log cabin on the lot between Philadelphia avenue and Cottage street.

Fisher Starr, of Orland, aged 90, died last Thursday, of old age.

Mrs. Delia Rosetti, of California, formerly of Lamoine, has presented her native town with a vane for the steeple of the new church.

Capt. H. E. Stover, of West Penobscot, sowed one and one-half bushels of Lost Nation wheat last year on less than one acre of ground. His crop amounted to fifteen bushels of clean wheat, from which he got three barrels of first grade flour at the new mill at Mason's Mills. He also got three quarters of a barrel of second grade flour, and three bushels of middlings. Capt. Stover is firm in the faith that Eastern Maine is the place to raise wheat, and will show his faith by his works this year.

Kennebec.

Last week a tramp entered the house of Peter Preo, in Waterville, and took from the entry a soldier's dress coat. He had in his possession a paper requesting money to buy clothes, which he presented to people along the road.

The first arrival of the season at Augusta was on Thursday, being the advent of a steam tug towing the pile driver which was used in driving piles for the temporary wharf of the steamboat company, at the town landing. The work was done on Thursday, as well as the erection of a temporary shed. Work will soon be commenced on the permanent wharf and store house.

A new baggage room is in process of construction at the M. C. passenger station in Gardiner. The room now used as a baggage room and the ticket office is to be made into one room and used as the ticket office.

Waterville has opened the spring with many changes. Chas. R. McFadden, who has been the faithful postmaster since May 17th, 1861, retired last Monday. When he took the office he had F. E. The Camden Herald says Mr. Alex Trim has found his boat which was stolen last week. Capt Carver of the North Haven packet picked it up adrift on shore down at the south end of Rockland. The oars and rudder were gone and two small holes were stove in her. It is evident that the thieves became frightened and let the boat go adrift. Mr. Trim went to Rockland the next day after his boat was gone and saw the same party in the harbor that left Camden harbor the night before, but could not find his boat anywhere. About 700 pounds of pig iron for ballast stolen from John Porter and 200 pounds which were in the boat, were found in her.

The schooner Anasold, Capt. N. Talbot, of Camden, bound for Savannah, is now over due, and as she was out in the gale of the 31st fears are entertained of her safety. Among the crew was Geo. Mullin, of Camden.

Charles W. Stevens, at Belfast jail for stealing hides, attempted to escape by filing off the bars to his cell door. The suspicions of the sheriff were aroused recently by finding a dummy representation of the prisoner in Stevens' bed when the prisoners were being locked up for the night. At the time Stevens was hid in one of the closets, and it is supposed he intended to make his escape through the roof. Since then he has been kept locked up in his cell. On Monday night Mr. Baker made an examination of the cell door, and found two bars sawed off, and a third one nearly so. Searching the cell, a file, and two saws, one made from the main spring of a clock and the other from a case-knife, were found. It is supposed Stevens did his work in the day time, as a poor debtor roomed with him nights.

AN ELEGANT VOLUME

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY IN A NEW BINDING

Among the wonderful advancements made in almost every field of science and art during the present decade, nothing has attracted more attention than the growing beauty of the illustrated magazines of this country. Of SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY the London Literary World has said, in a recent issue, "We know no covers of equal dimensions which concentrate within themselves such choice products of the designer's and engraver's art, or, on the whole, a finer quality of literary work." Its popularity has been steadily increasing at the rate of about 10,000 copies per year, since its first number in November, 1870. It is now eight and a half years old, with an average circulation of over 90 000 copies monthly. The edition of the April number was 92,000, with a certainty, at the time of writing, of reprinting, soon, of May, 95 000 copies have been printed. There have been already three editions of the January number and two of the February.

We have just received from the Publishers the Seventeenth Volume, closing with the April number and appearing in a new and elegant binding, the covers in olive green being embossed in artistic design with cover linings of equally attractive style. The contents of the volume comprise the numbers from November 1878 to April 1879, inclusive with almost a thousand pages of choice reading matter and three hundred and fifty cuts. There are two frontispieces,—portraits of Longfellow and of Emerson, by Eaton and Cole, with elegantly illustrated articles on their homes and surroundings, there are other biographical articles on John Ericsson (the best popular account of the great engineer ever published), Eugene Scribe, Leonardo Vinci, John Leech, "Henry Bergh and his Work," Modjeska (with a portrait of rare beauty), and others, the wonderful pictures by the members of the Tile Club, which have excited such universal admiration, a paper on "Actors and Actresses of New York," with portraits of many of them in character; "Aerial Navigation," by the poet Stedman, an article of great interest on Edison, fully illustrated papers on Bird Architecture; "Old Maryland Manners," California Scenery, the "Old Mill" at Newport, short stories by Edward Bellamy, Noah Brooks, Edward Eggleston, Frank R. Stockton, Bret Harte and others, the latter half of "Falconberg," Boyesen's story, which is now being translated into several European languages, and the first six installments of Mrs Burnett's "Haworth's." Every one knows the power and brilliancy of "That Lass o'Lowrie's," and it is certain that this story, which the London Illustrated News refers to as "that thoroughly successful novel, 'Haworth's,'" will not fall behind it. "Haworth's" is pronounced by a leading literary critic of New York to be the most notable publication in American fiction.

In addition there is choice poetry, editorial departments and miscellaneous matter of special interest. For the coming year the proprietors offer still greater attractions and stronger inducements. They offer for $4 00 to send volume 17 of SCRIBNER'S Monthly, containing the numbers from October '78, to April '79, inclusive, bound in the new and elegant style (olive green cloth, with ornamented cover linings), and enter a subscription for six months, viz., May to October, '79—with the Brazil papers portraits, etc. The full subscription price is $4 00 a year—a six months' subscription, $2 00. As the price of a bound volume is $3 00, in accepting this offer, the subscriber will receive a half year of SCRIBNER for $1 00. Orders will be filled by booksellers or the publishers, Scribner & Co. New York.

NEW MAGAZINES

POTTER'S AMERICAN MONTHLY is one of the standard magazines of the times and presents its readers with matter of the very best quality, evincing good editorial work in the various departments. The number for May which is just issued opens with "The Modern Vulcan," an article devoted to Richard Gordon Gatling's early life and inventions dealing more especially with that terrible piece of ordinance the Gatling gun, of which several fine engravings are given. Another paper which will be read with deep interest is "Reminiscences of Edwin Forrest, the tragedian. The paper on "America's Song Composers" this month treats of H. P. Danks. The second of the Knickerbocker tales, A Scene in Fort Amsterdam, Tom Trudge or Only a Tramp, An Incongruous Land, English and American Trees, together with the stories, poems, and miscellany of the several departments make up a number of great excellence. The publishers are deserving the thanks of readers and the compliments of the craft for the elegant style in which the magazine is printed. John E. Potter & Co., Publishers, Philadelphia.

DR. HUGGINS' DOG.—Dr. Huggins, the famous British astronomer, was the owner of a wonderful dog named Kepler. After a dinner or lunch he would march into the room and seat himself at his master's feet. Dr. Huggins would then propound various arithmetical questions, which Kepler would invariably solve without a mistake, even extracting square roots without seeming difficulty. Thus, for the square root of twenty-five he would promptly respond with five barks, and so on. Sometimes the questions were more complicated, when Kepler would apparently give more thought to the matter, hesitating about the number of barks, but sure to give the right answer at last. A piece of cake was held before him during the lesson, but the dog never moved his eyes from his master's face until the solution was reached, and then the cake disappeared in a marvellously short time. The only way this canine feat can be explained is this: Dr. Huggins was entirely unconscious of suggesting the right answer, but the dog had acquired the habit of reading in his master's eye or countenance some mysterious indication that guided him to the right result. Kepler was a mind-reader, but his genius and accomplishments failed to secure for him length of days. He died before his time, honored and lamented by many appreciative friends.

Free Entry—Fruit Boxes made from Imported Domestic Shook.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
March 17, 1879.

SIR: This Department is in receipt of your letter of the 28th ultimo, transmitting the appeal (10917) of Messrs. D. H. Tully & Co. from your assessment of duty on the value of two hundred fruit boxes containing lemons, and constituting part of an importation per "Samana," January 13, 1879.

It appears that the certificate of the foreign shipper is not in the precise form set forth in the Department's circular of February 17, 1875, that the shooks were shipped in packages of ten each, the tops, bottoms, and sides of the boxes to be made therefrom in one package, and the material for the ends in ... another, and that some of the pieces on arrival abroad were cut twice for each box.

The appraiser reports that the shook bear evidence that they are of the manufacture of the United States.

Two questions are presented: First, whether in addition to the evidence already presented, evidence of the clearance of the shooks for the foreign country must be produced as prescribed by article 171 of the Customs Regulations; and, second, whether the sawing of the pieces in a foreign port makes them a foreign manufacture and excludes them from the provisions of the act of February 8, 1875, ... shooks returned as barrel or boxes.

Article 3-1 of the Regulations relating to the free entry of bags, boxes, casks and other envelopes manufactured in the United States of domestic or foreign materials requires in addition to other evidence that a declaration shall be made at the time of exportation and at the port whence exported of the intent to return the articles, and it is held by the Department that this regulation applies to shooks as well as to the bags, boxes, casks, etc., mentioned therein.

The modifications of article 381 and 382 of the Regulations contained in the circular of the Department of the ... of February 1875 have not been construed as abolishing the requirements additional to those mentioned in said circular contained in the articles before their modification.

The Department has lately decided that a bond of the nature of the declaration of the foreign shipper may be taken under article 384, although such bond is not provided for in the circular cited.

You will, therefore, hereafter require, preliminary to the free entry of shooks, evidence that a declaration was made in accordance with article ...

The sawing of the shooks into lengths, as described above will not be treated as excluding them from the provisions of the free list.

Very respectfully,
By order. H. F. FRENCH, Assistant Secretary.

WHY FLOWERS TURN TO THE SUN.—Wiesner has presented to the Vienna Academy a monograph upon heliotropism and geotropism in plants. After a historical sketch, the author treats of the influence of light on heliotropism, and shows that with decreasing intensity of light the strength of the heliotropic effect increases to a certain point, and beyond that point decreases. The lower limit of light intensity coincides with the lower limit of heliotropic effect for the stoppage of growth in length, while the upper limit does not coincide except only occasionally; one lies with the upper limit of heliotropic effect for growth in length. In the case of only very sensitive heliotropic plants the upper limit of light intensity for stoppage of growth in length lies higher, and in less sensitive plants lower than the upper limit for growth in length. He next considers the relation between the refrangibility of rays and their heliotropic effect, and shows that portions of very sensitive heliotropic plants ... curve in all light ... the ultra red and ultra violet, except the yellow. Experiments on the joint action of heliotropism and geotropism are next described, and the author concludes that the pretention of heliotropism is due to unequal growth upon unequally lighted sides of the plant.—Harper's Magazine.

RANDOLPH'S AND WADE HAMPTON'S IMPERTINENCE.

On Friday last Senator Randolph, of New Jersey concluded a very prosy speech by a reference to a deserved snubbing that he received from President Grant in the winter of 1876, when acting as bearer of bombastic messages from Wade Hampton the commander of the rifle-club mob assembled in Columbia, South Carolina, for the purpose of overthrowing the State Government. Randolph had been in South Carolina acting as a sort of volunteer champion of Hampton and came to Washington as Hampton's emissary at a critical time early in December. Our readers will distinctly remember the situation. The legal legislature of the State had regularly canvassed the official returns of the State Canvassing Board and declared Governor Chamberlain duly re-elected by over 3000 majority. An attempt was made to organize a Democratic Legislature but only 59 certified members of the House and no Senators could be claimed for the purpose. This rump however pretended to be the Legislature of South Carolina and declared Wade Hampton Governor without an official evidence of the election or compliance with any legal form required to the election of Governor. It was then determined to take possession of the State House by armed force and the messages were sent out in all directions summoning the rifle clubs. Some of these inferences [illegible] have been published with the Cipher Despatches. One dated Dec 2 said [illegible] expected at the [illegible] this week. Prepare for high sport. Let best boys come but not too many in [illegible] well heeled. Another of Dec [illegible] ordered the party address to consolidate men, and to bring best men and tool chest [illegible] other was even more explicit:

"Send up to night all the right men possible. Inauguration may take place to morrow. If rifles can be concealed, bring them. Don't wait till to morrow [illegible] State fair roster [illegible]."

In pursuance of these instructions telegraphed all over the State Columbia was filled with rifle club organization prepared [illegible] to be [illegible] ors of the State Fair but really intending to capture the State House and install Hampton as Governor by revolution. At this time Randolph of New Jersey visited the President accompanied by Abram S Hewitt with a message from Wade Hampton that the President would recognize the rump Legislature and remove the troops [illegible] Hampton would preserve the peace. The President very forcibly and most properly remarked that he considered Hampton's [illegible] impertinence. Randolph had something to say about the State Supreme Court that of the notorious Moses which had already shown self shamefully corrupt and which had resorted to clear usurpation in an effort to coerce the Canvassing Board in Tilden favor. Randolph pretended to think it a terrible thing that the President did not regard the dictum of an infamous judge as sufficient to warrant him in repudiating the Constitutional appeal of the Governor and Legislature of a State, and he told his story the other day as if it were something new. The editor of the Commercial also informed his readers that [illegible] caused considerable of a sensation in the Senate.

Rather an old sensation, we should say, as there was hardly an incident of the Southern complications of 1876 more familiar to people who intelligently followed events than the Randolph interview referred to. The public knew all about it at the time and throughout the North it was thought that the President had rarely used more felicitous language than in characterizing the message of the mob leader in South Carolina as impertinence. Instead of bringing out anything new Randolph only repeated what was distinctly told by our Pre[sident] himself in an interview with the Agent of the Associated Press on Saturday December [illegible] telegraphed all over the country. In this interview President Grant told the story thus:

"Senator Randolph then produced a despatch from General Hampton in which he said that if the President would recognize the Wallace House and withdraw the troops he would do everything possible to preserve the peace."

"The President remarked that he looked upon this as a piece of impertinence on the part of General Hampton in telling him what to do; that the sending of troops to South Carolina was in obedience to the call of Governor Chamberlain, the danger then being too formidable for the authorities of the State to control, that he (Grant) recognized [illegible] Governor Hampton [illegible] of Columbia and that if the Federal troops should be withdrawn there would be peace but [illegible] peace of [illegible]."

"The troops were in South Carolina, the President repeated, in obedience to the call of Governor Chamberlain to suppress [illegible] too formidable for him to control and [illegible] Governor Chamberlain [illegible] refugee [illegible] as Governor Ames now is from Mississippi."

It will be seen that President Grant's remarks in reply to the demand of a notorious insurrection[ist] were not only timely and pertinent but that they have also proved prophetic in regard to the rightful Governor of that State. Wade Hampton has never been legally in possession of the office of Governor of South Carolina, and his presence in the United States Senate to-day as the result of his usurpation is an impertinence to the people and an outrage upon the principles of Republican government.

THE MICHIGAN REPUBLICAN VICTORY

The triumph of the Republicans of Michigan in a square fight, on an honest money platform, over the combined forces of Democracy and Greenbackers is one of the most gratifying events of the year. The official returns received up to last Friday from 70 counties which cast within 5,500 of the full vote of the State last year, give the head of the ticket Judge James V. Campbell the Republican candidate for Associate Judge of the Supreme Court, 131 242, against 12[?],660 for Shipman, the candidate of the Democratic-Greenback coalition, a Republican majority of 5,682. Judge Campbell's vote is the largest by many thousands ever cast at a spring election and at least 7,000 larger than the vote of Gov. Croswell in the same counties last fall. The Republican candidates for Regents of the University have about the same majority.

The significance of this vote is to be found in a comparison with the figures of last year, when although the Republicans had a plurality of 44 777 over the highest opposing candidate, the combined Greenback and Democratic vote gave a majority over the Republicans of 2[?],536. This entire majority has been overcome and the Republican candidates have been chosen by a clear majority of about 5,000 over the combined opposition.

From 60 counties full returns received show the election this year of 538 Republican Supervisors against 463 last year, an increase of 75, equal to a change of 150 on majorities of those 60 counties and the Republicans will control 35 against 30 counties last year, with the boards tied in seven in both years. In the 40 cities of the State the Republicans have elected 24 Mayors whereas in 31 last year they elected only 9. The detailed returns show that the "National" party has been broken up and that many of its supporters in 1878 have returned to their Republican allegiance. Michigan is handsomely in line for 1880 and the stalwart Republican sentiment of the State is growing more earnest and enthusiastic every day.

MEMORIAL DAY—NOT IN MEMORY OF A WAR BETWEEN THE STATES.

(Perley in Boston Journal.)

Judging from the number of invitations sent here from different sections of the country to leading Republican Congressmen inviting them to deliver orations on the coming [illegible] day, there will be an unusually general observance of the sacred festival. It [illegible] that those who [illegible] the Capitol to [illegible] high and heartfelt honors to the three hundred thousand heroes of the Republic who [illegible] their lives [illegible] and nobly they met death on bloody battle-fields, on the lonely picket line, in the prison pens of the South, or in Union hospitals that the Union should not be dissolved. [illegible] Mr. Blaine said yesterday [illegible] unhappy war between the States, but they fought to put down [illegible] of citizens of this Union [illegible] the Government of the United States. They established [illegible] liberty [illegible] right to [illegible] they [illegible] [illegible] Republican [illegible] to [illegible] with [illegible] honest currency. Now when it is proposed to destroy what they had won, the lives in [illegible] is the time to hold them in grateful remembrance and to form new resolutions over their graves.

THE RETURN TO STALWART REPUBLICANISM.

From the N. Y. Tribune.

The President's outbursts to talk freely concerning his attitude toward the revolutionary projects of the Democrats. In conversation with several Republican Senators the other day he declared that he was heartily in accord with their position and had no hesitation in saying that he believed the Republican policy to be the true one for the peace, security and liberty of the country. A correspondent of The Philadelphia Times represents him as adding that after giving the conciliatory policy a thorough trial he was convinced that the success of [illegible] would require material quite different from that which he had attempted to work upon. He [illegible] alone in that [illegible] thousand of independent voters have reached [illegible] conclusion [illegible].

From the Commercial [illegible]

It is the duty of stalwart Republicans to welcome back all who followed after the jack o' lantern of the surrender policy giving them credit for purity of motive but it is too much to assume that there was anything patriotic in the abandonment of the majority governments of Louisiana and South Carolina in order to conciliate the Southern Bourbons. It may be admitted that the Republican advocates of that abandonment, after the fact were only mistaken in believing it would allay the sectional and arrogant spirit of the Democracy, but there [illegible] end, for no one who fully comprehended the character of the leaders of the Democratic party could for a moment entertain such a hope. The fact stands out [illegible] and [illegible] once more in question [illegible] reference to the [illegible] the North which [illegible] [illegible].

MR BLAINE ON THE ARMY BILL.

From the N. Y. [illegible]

The powerful speech of Senator Blaine effectively opened the debate on the Army bill in the Senate. He [illegible] of Democratic [illegible] the existing law was shown when Mr. Blaine gave official statements of the number of troops in each State. The notion that the people of Alabama are ground down under the iron heel of military despotism, the whole number of soldiers in that State being twenty nine. [illegible] North Carolina was submerged by an army of thirty men deserves all [illegible]. The constitutional right of the President as Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Chief Executive of the Nation [illegible] as many soldiers in any part of the country as may be necessary to enforce the laws and to support the civil authorities in preserving the peace will not be lost sight of, and is not to be treated as lightly as the Democrats suppose. Nor will they escape the dilemma upon which they are pinned by the amendment which Mr. Blaine offered—in effect that if the forces of the United States may not be near any poll neither shall any military, naval or civil officer [illegible] appear within a mile of any polling place, armed with any deadly weapon either concealed or displayed. If the Democratic party dares to deny to the President the power to enforce the laws and to preserve the peace it will next be compelled to say whether Wade Hampton's red shirt legions and the White Leaguers of other States shall be permitted to defy the laws and to break the peace. The Senators are right in directing especial attention to the matter of this bill. Its manner is revolutionary and outrageous, but that is not the only or the chief ground for rejecting it.

The assistant Democrats, in the press and elsewhere have nearly abandoned the pretence that there is nothing revolutionary in the attempt to coerce the President into a surrender of his veto power by a threat to stop the operations of the Government. A very few of the most senseless and unscrupulous still stick to that pretence, however and the speech of Senator Wallace was meant to give them comfort. He possesses a rare faculty for stolid and unblushing denial of things which every person within the sound of his voice knows to be true. Hence he was, of all Senators, the right one to assert that the Democrats had no idea of depriving the President of his full right of veto, and that the measure pending was not forced upon the House and Senate by the dictates of a party caucus. The threats openly made at the close of the last session sufficiently answer one assertion. The formal action of the Democratic caucus, before either the Army or the Legislative bill was introduced, settles all question as to the truthfulness of the other. Daily denials will not change the ugly fact—which Senator Beck has been frank enough to confess in public—that the Democratic leaders openly declared that they would stop the supplies. The very form of the bills now pending in the two houses was dictated by a Democratic caucus.

Mr Blaine is perfectly right in calling attention to these facts. A majority of all votes in a Democratic caucus is cast by members from the Solid South. Government by Democratic caucus, therefore is government by the rebel minority. It is the Gray above the Blue. That is exactly what it means, and every Southern Democrat rejoices in the fact that the men who tried to destroy the Union in 1861 are able through a Democratic caucus, to dictate laws to both branches of Congress in 1879. If the power is not used to the full extent this year it is only because the Democratic party is not yet in control of the Executive, and prefers to disguise both its purpose and its methods, in some degree, until after the election of 1880. Given a Democratic President, named by the Solid South and under bonds to do its bidding, and the same league of Southern leaders who now control the caucus would then dictate to every branch of the Government.

It was against this very same despotism, usurped and exercised by a Senatorial clique in the days of Pierce, that the Douglas Democrats rebelled. Then, as now, the Solid South had supreme power in a Democratic caucus. Then, as now, it used that power for aggressive and sectional ends. Then, as now, it threatened to destroy the Government unless its demands should be granted. Democrats finally revolted, under Douglas, and refused to be driven any longer under the lash of caucus to the destruction of the Union. But Douglas is dead. Eighteen years of defeat and famishing exclusion from office have made the Northern Democracy submissive. The country must now be saved from harm, not by any change within the Democratic party, but by a revolution against that party, its methods and its aims.

THE CROWD THAT HAS CAPTURED THE CAPITOL.

(Wash. Cor. Boston Advertiser.)

A NOTORIOUS GAMBLING HELL PROPRIETOR CHOSEN CATERER TO THE HOUSE.

The selection of John Chamberlin, the gambler, by the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds as the restaurateur of the House for the present Congress is severely criticised, and is generally regarded as an affront to the decency of the country. It is, nevertheless in keeping with other acts of the Democratic House. Chamberlin kept the leading gambling house in Washington several years ago and has been the boss gambler in New York and Long Branch for a number of years. For the past year he has been proprietor of a club house and restaurant here. The excuse which the committee offer for their disgraceful action is, that Chamberlin knows how to keep a good restaurant, and that his morality has nothing to do with his new functions.

CONFEDERATE BRIGADIERS ON GUARD.

Already two ex Confederate brigadiers one of them being General Harry Gilmour of Baltimore, the well known rebel cavalry chieftain, have received appointments as messengers in the Senate under the new regime. The duties that they will have to perform consist in acting as doorkeepers to the galleries during the sessions of the Senate taking care of committee rooms and running on errands for Senators.

Of producing Jeff Davis, of being the State in which Captain Crane of our army was murdered by Colonel Yerger in cold blood, where Captains King, Manning and Fawn were assassinated for the offense of being Republicans, proud of the shooting of Mrs Price the Postmistress at Meridian, by an armed mob, for the offense of being the wife of an ex Federal officer, proud of the massacre of over 150 negroes for political offenses, at Meridian, Rolling Fork, Clinton and other places, proud of the Chisolm murders, where an old man was shot to death while his daughter [illegible] clung to him until she too was bullet-riddled and beaten with clubs [illegible] proud of being natives of a State where [illegible] man has been punished for these crimes.

The Louisville Post declares that while the Democracy of Kentucky is leaderless, 100 000 hungry Democrats expect Tilden to give them the Louisville Postoffice, hence the State is solid for Tilden.

Judging the future in Ohio by the past in Michigan, the Buffalo, (N Y) Courier (Dem.) believes that the proposed coalition between the Democrats and Nationals in the former State will prove disastrous.

Henry E. Fitz, of Maine, one of the oldest and most efficient clerks in the office of the Secretary of the Senate, is among those who have received Democratic notice that their services are no longer required.—Cor. Boston Journal.

"The War between the States" is the Boston Post's happy style of reference to the war waged by the Secessionists in 1860 and 1861, copying after the wily Stephens, of Georgia. Assuredly the doughface is coming to his own again.—Concord Monitor.

The monarch shooters of Russia can't do it like men of "honah" in Kentucky. Your little toy revolvers with five shots only scare an Emperor, while one charge of buckshot from a double-barreled gun settles a Kentucky Judge the first fire.—Inter-Ocean.

The great value and strength of the Greenback party is to be seen in the result of the election in Wisconsin. In 1877 the Republicans had 4000 majority. This year the Greenbackers and Democrats united, and presented a solid front. The Republican majority is 32,000.—Phil. N. American.

The Boston Herald affects to question our right to arraign its Washington correspondent "for venturing to speak disrespectfully of John A. Logan." Well we do arraign him, and we do question the Herald's right to "speak disrespectfully of John A. Logan." We do not know that the Boston Herald, its Washington scavenger or the writer of the paragraph referred to ever rendered any service to the Nation or to the people thereof. We know that John A. Logan has rendered services that entitle him to the respect and gratitude of all loyal men. If there is anything about the history, character or personnel of the Boston Herald that gives it warrant to sneer and fleer at a gallant and distinguished Union soldier, we are unaware of it.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Whig and Courier.

TUESDAY, APRIL 22, 1879.

BY TELEGRAPH.

MAINE NEWS.

FROM PORTLAND.

The Treasury Robbery.

PORTLAND, April 21. In the Supreme Court to-day Judge Virgin announced the decision of the Full Bench in the case, county of Cumberland against Thomas Pennell, Treasurer, granting a new trial on the ground that robbery without his connivance was a valid defence, the burden to be on him to prove that he was robbed.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

FROM WASHINGTON.

CONGRESSIONAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

The Blunder of the Revolutionists.

SENATOR HEREFORD'S "MISTAKE."

The Week's Action Forecast.

[Special to the Boston Advertiser.]

WASHINGTON, April 20. The coming week promises to be a busy one in both branches of Congress. The army bill will possibly be passed by the Senate about Friday or Saturday at the earliest, although Senator Withers has given notice that he will ask for a vote on Thursday. There appears to be a general disposition to reach a vote as soon as possible, in order to send the bill to the President and ascertain whether he will approve or veto it.

The Post's Last 'Fraud' Shriek.

Senator Thurman has purchased one thousand copies of the recent issue of the Washington Post, which contains his picture and a biographical sketch which began in these words: "The de jure President of the United States, whose portrait accompanies this article, is Allen G. Thurman, of Ohio, who was on Tuesday chosen President pro tempore of the United States Senate. By the terms of the Constitution when there is a vacancy in the Presidential and Vice-Presidential office, as there now is, Messrs. Samuel J. Tilden and Thomas A. Hendricks having failed to qualify and assume the duties of the offices to which they were respectively elected, the President pro tempore of the Senate becomes the acting President of the United States. To this office Mr. Thurman was yesterday chosen."

Democratic Perversion of Truth.

[Special to the Boston Journal.]

WASHINGTON, April 20. Democratic newspapers are perverting an account of a pretended interview with General Grant in regard to the South Carolina bogus Legislature which Senator Randolph had with General Grant. In that interview Grant is reported to have spoken contemptuously of the Supreme Court, and the press are charging that he said he would defy the United States Supreme Court. The statement is a partisan perversion, as General Grant referred only to the Supreme Court of the State of South Carolina, which at a brief period in the same controversy in a partisan way attempted to defeat the election to advantage of that State.

Democratic Leaders Convinced of their Blunder.

It is very evident from the confidential admissions of Democrats influential in their party councils that the party leaders are beginning to think that they have committed an error in forcing the extra session and making threats as to stopping the Government, and that the energies of the party leaders are now being directed to discover a graceful solution of existing complications. The feeling has not taken possession of the majority of the party, but it is rapidly influencing a large number of the most active leaders, and is the only basis for the numerous pending rumors of probable compromise.

Pompous Democrats Corrected.

Senator Blaine in his great speech on the Army bill the other day, challenged the Democratic Senators present to state that they had ever seen Federal troops used to interfere with voters at the polls. Thereupon General Cerro Gordo Williams of Kentucky, and Hereford of West Virginia rose and claimed to have been personal witnesses to such interference. Gen. Williams was, however, compelled to admit that the interference which he saw consisted in the stacking of arms of soldiers in a public square on election day, and in the troublesome border State of Kentucky more than a year before the war closed. Senator Hereford insisted, however, that after the war he had seen West Virginia Federal soldiers interfere with citizens at the polls. But now comes a West Virginia journalist, editor of the Washington Republic—Brisbin Walker, who says:

"Senator Hereford made a curious mistake in his statement that he had seen soldiers at the polls in West Virginia in 1870. In that year there was but one company of soldiers in the State. They belonged to the 3d Artillery and had been sent from Fort McHenry to assist the United States Marshal in taking possession of a large tract of land in one of the back counties. At the time of the election this company was located at Charleston, and I recollect very well that an order was issued that they should not go near the polls. Moreover, if I recollect rightly, two out of three of the officers commanding the company were Democrats. The troops were not used at the polls nor was the idea of their being used even so much as suggested. Senator Hereford will have to retract."

More 10-40s Called.

WASHINGTON, April 21. The Secretary of the Treasury to-day issued the ninety-... call for the redemption of $21,566,300 of 10-40 bonds of 1864. Principal and interest will be paid at the Treasury on and after the 21st of July and interest will cease on that day.

FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS—First Session.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 21.

The consideration of the resolution authorizing the Sergeant-at-Arms and Secretary of the Senate to remove and appoint clerks, etc., was postponed owing to the absence of Mr. Wallace, who introduced the resolution.

The Senate resumed consideration of the Army Appropriation bill and Mr. Bayard defended the incorporation of general legislation on appropriation bills, as being nothing unusual. The cry of revolution was unsubstantial and foolish and the people would condemn it.

He said the Constitution expressly provided that no appropriation for the Army should be made for a longer period than two years, so that the existing military establishment was made dependent only upon the consent of Congress. In further remarks Mr. Bayard noticed the remark of Mr Blaine about the distribution of the army, whereupon Mr. Blaine asked Mr. Bayard to quote his words. Mr. Bayard said he would do so, but would have to send for the Congressional Record. Mr. Blaine remarked that what he said was this: "That not a Senator of the other side of the chamber had ever seen a U. S. soldier at the polls." Mr. Bayard replied that if the Senator preferred to limit his remarks to the actual vision of the Senators he had nothing to say.

Mr. Blaine said his confidence in that statement had not been disturbed by any remarks on the other side.

Mr. Bayard then proceeded to read a circumstantial account of a large presence of troops in New York in the fall of 1870 at the polls to prevent disorder.

Mr. Blaine said he wished to ask a question why the Senator did not select a precedent found in 1857 when President Buchanan called out the marines to attend the Washington municipal election when seven men were shot down by them, the scene being within a mile of the Senate Chamber?

Mr. Bayard said he would discuss that question some other time. Any party of men in this country who seek to remove an infringement on the liberties of the American people, should have his support at all times. He held that the employment of armies at the polls was simply atrocious. He condemned at some length all conduct which would tend to prevent a restoration of full confidence and friendship to all parts of the country. Many expressed surprise at the Republican opposition to the proposed repeal and he asserted its constitutionality and deprecated stirring up sectional strife. The South acted as they saw the right. The Senate at 3.15 went into Executive session and soon after adjourned.

House.

A number of financial bills were introduced and several bills relative to the Pacific Railroads. Among the bills introduced were two by Mr. Wood of New York, one establishing a permanent sinking fund and the other providing for the appointment of a Joint Committee to revise the Revenue laws. Although but nine States had been called the bills introduced up to 1:30 P. M., numbered 290.

At 2.30 P. M. the call of States had only reached Georgia and upwards of 500 bills had been introduced. Twenty-one States, inclusive of Territories, yet remain to be called. A vast number of petitions were filed, among them the following: By Mr. Warner, praying for an amendment in the coinage laws so to admit silver to unlimited coinage on the same conditions with gold and to provide for the issue of certificates for bullion; also a number of petitions praying for such legislation as will make effective the anti-polygamy laws of 1862. The latter was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Among other bills introduced were the following: By Mr. Joyce, proposing a constitutional amendment prohibiting the payment of claims to disloyal persons for property destroyed during the war; by Mr. Tyler, construing the act of 1861 to indemnify States for expenses incurred in defence of the Union; by Mr. Garfield, authorizing the Secretary of War to furnish tents and rations to destitute colored emigrants in Kansas and appropriating $75,000 for the purpose; by Mr. Turner providing for an income tax; by Mr. Whitthorne, authorizing a joint special committee to enquire into the causes of the emigration of negroes; by Mr. Stevenson proposing a constitutional amendment prohibiting the payment of Southern war claims; by Mr. Weaver directing the issue of $6,000,000 of United States notes to be paid out as Congress may hereafter direct; also authorizing the issue and circulation of $50,000,000 of fractional currency.

All the States and Territories having been called and 1385 bills having been introduced the House at 6:30 P. M. took a recess of an hour.

Five members were present at the evening session when the House reassembled and immediately went into Committee of the Whole on the Legislative bill. Speeches were made by Messrs. Brown in opposition, New and Frost in favor of the proposed repeal. Mr. Deuster, of Wis., looked upon the repeal as an absolute necessity.

After Deuster's remarks the Committee rose and the House at 9:10 adjourned.

The Stephen Longfellow Marriage.

A reporter of the Boston Globe called on Mrs. W. P. P. Longfellow, at Cambridge, Mass., Tuesday, and received the following information in regard to the very strange marriage of Stephen Longfellow of Jersey City:

Mrs. Longfellow said that for years they knew little of Stephen's doings. He has got entirely beyond their reach on the road to ruin. He was divorced from his first wife, but married again about two or three years ago a woman out west, who had one child by him. So it was understood by the family of his brother. However, they have never seen her, and they do not know now where she and the child are. Years ago (Mrs. Longfellow says she does not remember the exact time) he was discharged from an honorable position in the United States revenue service. Since then whenever he could borrow money from his friends he would do so. The inference from the lady's manner as she said these words was that when he borrowed he did not intend to repay. The lady seemed to say that she had not heard of this third marriage, the one with Anna J. Hennessey. But, she said, it would be in keeping with his whole course of late years. It be borrowed money to lavish upon her, as stated, it is like the course he has been running. He had been for a long time a stranger to his relatives, and it was clear from Mrs. Longfellow's manner that to dwell further upon the topic only awakened feelings repugnant to her. With thanks for the courteous reception the reporter withdrew.

Contrary to the report that Stephen Longfellow's leg was amputated at the time of the accident, one of the surgeons of the Massachusetts General Hospital states that when he left there it was with the two legs with which he was born.

Anecdote of General Grant.

We have recently been reminded of the following anecdote of General Grant, related to the writer at the time by the late Joseph Sinclair, Esq., of Levant, the man who "did n't want an office," and published in the Jeffersonian of May 4th, 1869.

Just prior to the inauguration of President Grant, Mr. Sinclair made a trip to Florida, and on his return called at Washington in order to see General Grant. The rest of the sketch we copy from the Jeffersonian:

He looked about ... fully, but no General Grant was to be seen. He then went to the War Office and entering the ante-room told the door-keeper he would like to see General Grant.

"The General is engaged."

"Well, I want to see him."

"Upon what business?"

"No sir, I want to see him; I don't want an office, I don't want to speak to him, even, I don't want to occupy a moment of his valuable time; I want to see him merely."

"He is busy."

"When will he be out?"

"In about an hour."

"Well, I'm not going home without seeing General Grant. No Sir! and unless I am thrust out, with your leave I will sit here until he appears." Then dropping into a chair he resigned himself to the probable four hours' sitting. Presently the door-keeper was missing, but he soon returned with—"If you will go with me I will show you General Grant."

He followed to another room and was introduced to the General. The General extended his hand and expressed himself happy to see him. He shook the General's hand, took a good, hearty look at him and turned to depart, saying, "My ambition is satisfied; I have seen General Grant!"

"Take a chair, Sir; take a chair," said the General, appealingly,—"I am happy to see you."

"Thank you, sir, I will not occupy a moment of your valuable time, I came to see General Grant: I have seen him. His time is valuable, so is mine. Good bye sir," and, bowing, he left the room, followed by a merry laugh from the astonished President-elect.

Shortly it was announced in the New York Herald that there was a mysterious stranger in Washington who did not want an office, and the editor pervously asked, "Who is it?" and called on the detective force to arrest him as conspiring against the dignity of office seeking as one of the most respectable of all the professions.

Let it Waste.

Campmeeting John Allen tells a story about a man who came forward for prayers in the early days of his ministry, with red face and rum breath, not sober enough to understand the gravity of the occasion, but still seriously in earnest about his salvation. This man kept a little shop, and among other things sold a little new rum, but was his own best customer. Mr. Allen went to his shop one day and expostulated with him about the matter, but he said he could not afford to lose what rum he had on hand. Finally Allen agreed to buy it if he would seek the Lord then and there, and kneel down and pray for himself. As they knelt down the minister turned the faucet and set the rum to running. This was too much for the penitent, and he cried out on his knees, "It's wasting, it's wasting." "Let it waste," said the old saint as he kicked it out doors and took a hatchet and burst in the end of the cask. "It ain't measured," said the man. "Guess at it, and be sure to guess enough," said Allen. Thus the battle was won and the man became temperate and religious. Next day some of his church members said they thought Brother Allen "came to preach the gospel, not to spend his time kicking out rum barrels." "You can't get the gospel in till you kick the rum out," said the preacher.

Yesterday afternoon a large scow on the ice opposite the E. & N. A. depot went down river a few feet on a large cake of ice and then slid off into open water, where it was held by the chain. Several persons were in the scow at the time, who rather enjoyed this novel launch.

A special train came up over the Bucksport Railroad yesterday, arriving here at about half-past twelve o'clock, to accommodate the passengers from the boat. On account of this extra trip the regular train due here at a little before three o'clock in the afternoon, was about half an hour late.

Messrs. A. P. Veazie & Co., received a despatch Saturday night from Capt. J. B. Bartlett, dated Wood's Holl, Mass., stating that the brig S. P. Smith parted her chains and went ashore at Tarpaulin Cove and filled with water, but laid easy. She was loaded with coal for Messrs. Bacon & Huckins of this city.

The St. John's Total Abstinence Society attended the funeral of James Long yesterday morning in a body. It will be remembered that Long was seriously injured at Mt. Pleasant Cemetery some months since, mention of which was made at the time. He never recovered from the effects of his injuries and died last Saturday night.

Sunday the tug Ralph Ross started from Bucksport with the intention of towing the schooner Mary Limeburner to Hampden. They came up as far as Bartlett's Cove, about a mile below Hampden, where they found a strip of solid ice extending across the river and were obliged to return to Bucksport again. The ice was out above this strip up as far as Hampden.

At the anniversary concert of the Union street church we learned from the report of the Secretary, Mr. A. J. Taylor, that the whole number belonging to the school was 245, average attendance 109. Largest number present 155, on Oct. 6, smallest 22, on June 26. Only one member has died during the year. The receipts have been $159.15; expenditures $145.14, leaving a balance on hand of $14.01.

A COLLISION. Yesterday morning a team owned by Winthrop Lord was standing in front of Frank D. Pullen's store on Exchange street, when a team passing along the street collided with it, mixing things up in a strange manner. The team was moving rapidly at the time and Lord's horse and carriage were turned completely over in the mud. The wagon was somewhat broken, but the horse was all right as soon as he had recovered from the effects of his somersault. The owner of the other team agreed to pay the bills and drove on.

THE ICE STARTED. The ice took quite a start yesterday and the river is now open from the dam to the Maine Central depot. During the afternoon the river was full of floating ice and it was piled upon the wharves and shores, where the solid ice prevented it from going any farther down river. When it was known that the ice had started a large number of our citizens visited the wharves thinking that it was going out, but were disappointed. It is very weak, however, and the river will soon be open to navigation.

ART ASSOCIATION. The last meeting of this well known organization will take place this evening at the Art Room's and will consist of a social gathering. The members have done a great deal more this season for the advancement of art than ever before. Their meetings have been exceedingly interesting and as a consequence their membership has been increased largely. We trust that their work next year will be as satisfactory as it has been this, and that their membership will increase in like proportion.

MASS TEMPERANCE MEETING. The meeting announced for this evening in City Hall by the Women's Temperance Union, is in the interest of "Scientific Temperance," the name appropriately given to the movement for furnishing the children, through the public schools, with an accurate knowledge of the effects of alcohol on the human system, as one of the effective preventives of the drinking-habit. Among the speakers who will take part in the meeting are Profs. Sewall, Hamlin and Paine, Hon. A. G. Wakefield and others of our public-spirited citizens. The public are cordially invited.

SALMON DINNER AT THE EXCHANGE. In years gone by Mr. Woodard, the late proprietor of the Penobscot Exchange, invariably secured the first salmon of the season, in order that he might regale his numerous guests and friends with a dinner from the King of the Penobscot River, and yesterday, Messrs. Smith and Thayer, the new proprietors of that hotel, continued this old time custom by inviting a number of our citizens, including His Honor Mayor Brown, to dine with them. The large number of regular and transient boarders at the Exchange gave evidence of the popularity of the new management and it was a large family that assembled in the dining room yesterday. The dinner was gotten up in excellent style, as in fact are all the dinners at the Exchange, and all pronounced the salmon equal to any they had ever eaten. It seemed natural to see the Colonel about the old house once more, and we wish him and his partner, Mr. Thayer, a prosperous future.

THE HAMMOND STREET PASTORATE. A meeting of the members of the Hammond street church has been announced for this evening to take action upon the resignation of the pastorate by Rev. S. P. Fay. The matter is one that of course most directly affects the members and pastor of that church, but it is also one in which the community at large will feel an interest, and it is not improper for us to express our hope that Mr. Fay may reconsider his purpose of removing to some other field of labor. During his long residence here he has taken prominent part in our public and social life, lending his aid to the various movements for the promotion of temperance, literary, artistic and musical culture, and always ready to co-operate in any good work. In the years of his residence here a large circle of friends have become warmly attached to himself and his estimable family, and we know that it is sincerely hoped that they may remain with and of us for other years to come.

FOR THE LADIES. Silk nets are used in Paris for the crowns of bonnets, and are to be worn in the house this summer with a flower placed on the side. A new kind of bunting called Vienese comes in navy blue and wine color, and is trimmed with plaid for traveling and seaside costumes. The prettiest thing yet invented to be worn inside a dress that opens in the shawl fashion is the folded kerchief of transparent linen lawn. New York dressmakers use a foundation of navy blue gingham for the bandana dresses, making the kilt plaitings, collar and vest of the bandkerchiefs. Children's white dresses, trimmed with Hamburg work in red and blue, are sold for sixty cents in New York. Somebody must work for nothing to produce them. Jennie June thinks that the variegated straw bonnets would be pretty to wear at the mountains or seaside where the prevalence of subdued tints would make them grateful to the eyes. By all means, save them for the mountains, young ladies. If you wear them in the city innocent persons must see them, but nobody is obliged to frequent any particular summer resort.

A DISASTER NARROWLY AVERTED. A narrow escape from a terrible disaster occurred last Wednesday night on the night bound train from this city to Boston over the Eastern Railroad. Among the cars was one injured in the recent accident at North Beverly, and, as the train was nearing Portsmouth, one of the occupants felt a jolt as if the car was dropping from under him, but, as nothing further came from it, the train passed Portsmouth without an examination being made. It had hardly left the depot when the night watchman found on the track a lateral car spring, and, thinking it must have come from the train, telegraphed to Greenland, the nearest station, to stop the train and examine it to see if a spring had been lost, which was done, and a spring was found missing from under one corner of the car in which the jar, already spoken of, was felt. Had the spring not been timely discovered by the watchman, the train would, on rounding some curve at speed, have been thrown from the track, probably entailing a terrible slaughter of passengers as well as a heavy financial loss on the road.

A PRIZE. Owing to the severe storm the Steamer Katahdin, Capt. Roix, did not leave Boston until 4:30 Sunday morning. When 35 miles N. E. ½ E. from Cape Ann, she fell in with an abandoned schooner of about one hundred and thirty tons, with sails blown away excepting two jibs. On boarding her it was discovered that she had been badly strained, and that her rudder and both anchors were gone. By her log book, which was found in the cabin, she proved to be the Julia Clinch of St Andrews, N. B., Mahoney, Master, bound from St. Andrews to Portsmouth, N. H., with a cargo of railroad ties. The steamer made fast to her and took her into Portland where she was left in charge of a keeper. While the steamer was lying by the schooner, endeavoring to get lines to her, so that she could be taken in tow, some of the passengers and one or two of the officers saw a corpse drift past the steamer, but no report was made to the Captain, (he being busy with the schooner, did not see it himself,) until it was too late to make an effort to recover it. It was thought by those who saw it that its appearance indicated that it had been in the water a long time. The steamer had the vessel in tow for about eleven hours, and as there was quite a swell at the time, it required all of Capt. Roix's skill to prevent the schooner from colliding with them. The steamer arrived at Bucksport at half past eight yesterday morning.

Mrs. Scott Siddons.

A large and fine audience assembled at Music Hall last evening to enjoy listening to that ever favorite reader, Mrs. Scott-Siddons. Owing to some disarrangement of the seats on the floor of the hall, great confusion prevailed for a time, while the audience were endeavoring to find the seat bearing the same number as that on their checks, an undertaking that proved exceedingly difficult and, after promenading the hall for a time, many of the ticket holders dropped into the first vacant seat they could find. The following was the programme for the evening:

Robert of Sicily ... Longfellow
"Curfew Must Not Ring To-night ... R. H[illegible]
The Senator Entangled,—"Dodge Club."
"The Maniac" ... [illegible]
"Which?" ... M. [illegible] Lewis
"The Creeds of the Bells" ... [illegible]
"The Little Hero" ... [illegible]
"Love in a Balloon" ... [illegible]
"Shamus O'Brien," (By desire) ... [illegible]
"The Courtship of Henry V." ... Shakespeare
(By desire.)

Mrs. Siddons is so well known to a Bangor audience that any extended notice of her delightful performance last evening is entirely unnecessary. Her rendition of "The Maniac" was faultless and "The Creeds of the Bells" called forth an encore to which she responded with an extract from Helen's Babies. She has lost none of that remarkable beauty of face and figure since her last visit to this city, and all come away from the hall feeling that they had really enjoyed a rich literary treat.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT.

APRIL (CIVIL) TERM.

Chief Justice APPLETON, Presiding.
JAMES H. BURGESS, Esq., Clerk.
RUEL SMITH, Stenographer.

Monday, April 21.

Carrie A. Gilmore vs. Hugh Ross et al. In 1877, during the camp-meeting season at Northport the plaintiff was out rowing in a small boat. Defendants' steam tug attached to a vessel was leaving Northport, and while a short distance from the shore, ran into the plaintiff's boat, upsetting the boat and throwing the plaintiff and a little girl who was with her out. Plaintiff says she held the child in her arm and grasped the bob-stay of the vessel attached to the tug and held on until rescued. Plaintiff says she was greatly injured, shoulder dislocated, ribs broken and was severely bruised, and has suffered and still suffers much from her injuries. She claims she was in the exercise of a due degree of care, and that the injuries she has suffered resulted from the carelessness of those in charge of defendants' tug; that the defendants might have prevented the collision; and she brings her action to recover $6,000 damages. Defendants' side has not been yet opened, and the position taken by defendants will appear in a further report to be given.

Wrenched and Racked

By the pangs of rheumatism, the joints eventually become grievously distorted, and sometimes assume an almost grotesque deformity. To prevent such results by a simple and agreeable means is certainly the part of wisdom. A tendency to rheumatic ailments may be successfully combatted with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine with the prestige of a long and successful career, of unbounded popularity, and of emphatic professional endorsement. It removes from the blood those inflammatory impurities which pathologists assign as the cause of rheumatism, and not only purifies the life current, but enriches it, promoting vigor by fertilizing its source. Digestion, the action of the bowels and the secretion of the bile, are aided by it, and it impels the kidneys and bladder to a regular and active performance of their functions. It is besides a thoroughly reliable remedy for, and means of preventing, periodic fevers.

WM. E. CLARKE—Dear Sir: HUNT'S REMEDY has cured my wife of Dropsy in its worst form. All hope had left us for months. All say that it is a miracle. Water had dropped from her right limb for months. Forty-eight hours had taken all the extra water from her system. All other means had been tried. None succeeded but HUNT'S REMEDY.

TAKE CARE!!
AVOID IMPOSITION!

Most druggists are conscientious in their dealings, but there are a few who are not. A number of cases have been reported to us recently where druggists for the sake of gaining a small additional profit, have sought to impose upon their customers by offering them cheap and worthless imitations of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER in place of the genuine, or have tried to sell them the common porous plaster when Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster was asked for, falsely claiming that the common article possessed equal merit. We therefore caution all buyers of Benson's Capcine Plaster to see that the word CAPCINE is correctly spelled,—that each plaster has the word C-A-P-C-I-N-E cut through it. By this simple precaution imposition may be avoided.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

POSITIVELY THE BEST.

The valuable qualities of the ordinary porous plaster are in this article increased tenfold by new and scientific medication.

The manufacturers were awarded the highest and only medals given rubber plasters, at both the Centennial and Paris Expositions. Widely and favorably known among physicians as a great improvement on the ordinary porous plaster.

ASK ANY PHYSICIAN
IN YOUR OWN VICINITY ABOUT IT

and you will be convinced that it is so far superior to common porous plasters, liniments and the so-called cheap electrical appliances that it cannot be compared with them. Therefore do not take a common or inferior plaster at the same or less price. ASK FOR and insist on getting it. Observe above caution in buying.

This article is specially recommended for Lame and Weak Back, Coughs, Weak Lungs, Kidney and Spinal Complaints, and all Local Aches and Pains.

SCRIBNERS MONTHLY,
CONDUCTED BY J. G. HOLLAND.
The Handsomest Illustrated Magazine in the World.

The American edition of this periodical is now MORE THAN 70,000 MONTHLY, And it has a larger circulation in England than any other American magazine. Every number contains about one hundred and fifty pages, and from fifty to seventy-five original wood-cut illustrations.

Announcements for 1878-9.

Among the attractions for the coming year are the following:

"HAWORTH'S," a serial novel, by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "That Lass o' Lowrie's." The scene of Mrs. Burnett's new novel is laid in Lancashire; the hero is a young inventor of American birth. "Haworth's" is the longest story Mrs. Burnett has yet written. It will run through twelve numbers of the Monthly, beginning with November, 1878, and will be profusely illustrated.

FALCONBERG, a serial novel, by H. H. Boyesen, author of "Gunnar," "The Man who Lost His Name," &c. In this romance, the author graphically describes the peculiarities of Norse immigrant life in a Western Settlement.

A STORY OF NEW ORLEANS, by George W. Cable, to be begun on the conclusion of "Falconberg." This story will exhibit the state of society in Creole Louisiana about the years 1803-4-5, the time of the Cession, and a period bearing a remarkable likeness to the present Reconstruction period.

PORTRAITS OF AMERICAN POETS. The series (begun in August with the portrait of Bryant) will be continued, that of Longfellow appearing in November. These portraits are drawn from life by Wyatt Eaton and engraved by T. Cole. They will be printed separately on tinted paper, as frontispieces of four different numbers. Illustrated sketches of the lives of the poets will accompany these portraits.

STUDIES IN THE SIERRAS.—A series of papers (mostly illustrated) by John Muir, the Californian naturalist. The most graphic and picturesque and, at the same time exact and trustworthy studies of "The California Alps" that have yet been made. The series will sketch the California Passes, Lakes, Wind Storms and Forests.

A NEW VIEW OF BRAZIL. Mr. Herbert H. Smith, of Cornell University, a companion of the late Prof. Hartt, is now in Brazil, with Mr. J. Wells Champney (the artist who accompanied Mr. Edward King in his tour through "The Great South"), preparing for SCRIBNER a series of papers on the present condition,—the cities, rivers and resources of the great empire of South America.

THE "JOHNNY REB" PAPERS, by an "ex Confederate" soldier, will be among the raciest contributions to Scribner during the coming year. They are written and illustrated by Mr. Allen C. Redwood, of Baltimore. The first of the series, "Johnny Reb at Play," appears in the November number.

THE LEADING EUROPEAN UNIVERSITIES. We are now having prepared, for SCRIBNER, articles on the leading Universities of Europe. They will be written by an American College Professor, Mr. H. H. Boyesen, of Cornell (author of "Falconberg," etc.,) and will include sketches of the leading men in each of the most important Universities of Great Britain and the Continent.

Among the additional series of papers to appear may be mentioned, those on HOW SHALL WE SPELL (two papers by Prof. Lounsbury), THE NEW SOUTH, LAWN-PLANTING FOR SMALL PLACES (by Samuel Parsons, of Flushing), CANADA OF TO-DAY, AMERICAN ART AND ARTISTS, AMERICAN ARCHÆOLOGY, MODERN INVENTORS, also, Papers of Travel, History, Physical Science, Studies in Literature, Political and Social Science, Stories, Poems; "Topics of the Time," by Dr. J. G. Holland; record of New Inventions and Mechanical Improvements; Papers on Education, Decoration, etc., Book Reviews, fresh bits of Wit and Humor, etc., etc., etc.

Terms, $4 a Year in advance;

Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and Purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organs into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every day complaints of every body, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens, send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take, and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

THE CORPORAL BREAKS SILENCE.

BY REV. LEANDER S. COAN

I have been tryin', parson,
To find where I am, an' what
That I was a Union soldier,
I hardly have forgot,
But what I was, or the good uv it
Don't seem plain to me;
I hain't lost hope, but I cannot see
I'm not quite ready to cry.

They've thrown away the victory
We bought with toil an' blood,
Hear the senate an' House a-ringin'
With the roar uv Treason's flood,
The crew conspirin' to scuttle
The good old Union ship!
Ef the man at the wheel don't save us
They've got us in their grip.

An' they'll jest ez surely triumph
Ef we allow them to gain
Control uv the helm an' keep it
The plain uv their fightin' ez plain
Ez ever their line uv battle,
When to more manly way
They sought to wrest victory
From the heat ur deadly fray.

My hope is that the reptile
Whose rattle an' venemous hiss
Give us of old sure warning,
Will rattle again in this
His renewed an' reckless battle
Agin' Union with the North
Ef so, we may know the course
On which his hate goes forth.

The fang uv that snake is deadly—
Let us hope that his rattle is sure,
That he won't have the sense to hide it
While we're asleep secure,
But on the floor uv the Senate
An' in lower an' torch'll—
Will unwittingly sound the summons
That again to the lines will call—

All who fought for the Union,
All who gave brothers or friends,
To rally again to meet them
Though the Solid South defends
Where is the state and the spirit,
That arose in sixty one,
Swelling unflinching an' loyal
Until the battle was done.

Let us level our Soldiers' monuments,
An' level their humble graves
Hide our old swords an' muskets
An' cringe like a pack uv slaves
Before the swagger an' flourish
Ef we've come back to stay
An' suck the blood ur the nation
An' [illegible]

ST. NICHOLAS,

Scribner's Illustrated Magazine

FOR GIRLS AND BOYS.

AN IDEAL CHILDREN'S MAGAZINE.

Messrs. Scribner & Co., in 1873, began the publication of St. Nicholas, an Illustrated Magazine for Girls and Boys, with Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge as editor. Five years have passed since the first number was issued, and the magazine has won the highest position. It has a monthly circulation of OVER 50,000 COPIES.

It is published simultaneously in London and New York, and the transatlantic recognition is almost as general and hearty as the American. Although the progress of the magazine has been a steady advance, it has not reached its editor's ideal of best, because her ideal continually outruns it, and the magazine as swiftly follows after. To-day St. Nicholas stands

Alone in the World of Books:

The New York Tribune has said of it: "St. Nicholas has reached a higher platform, and commands for its service wider resources in art and letters than any of its predecessors or contemporaries." The London Literary World says: "There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal this choice production of Scribner's press."

Good Things for 1878--9.

The arrangements for literary and art contributions for the new volume—the sixth—are complete, drawing from already favorite sources, as well as from promising new ones. Mr. Frank R. Stockton's new serial story for boys,

"A JOLLY FELLOWSHIP,"

will run through the twelve monthly parts,—beginning with the number for November, 1878, the first of the volume—and will be illustrated by James E. Kelly. The story is one of travel and adventure in Florida and the Bahamas. For the girls a continued tale,

"Half a Dozen Housekeepers,"

By Katharine D. Smith, with illustrations by Frederick Dielman, begins in the same number, and a fresh serial by Susan Coolidge, entitled "Eyebright," with a copy of pictures, will be commenced early in the volume. There will also be a continued fairy tale called

"Rumpty Dudget's Tower,"

Written by Julian Hawthorne and illustrated by Alfred Fredericks. About the other familiar features of St. Nicholas, the editor preserves a good-humored silence, content to let the twelve volumes already issued prophesy concerning the six in respect to short stories, pictures, poems, humor, instructive sketches, and the ingenious "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," the "Very Little Folks" department, and the "Letter-Box" and "Riddle Box."

Terms $3 00 a year; 25 cents a Number.

Subscriptions received by the publishers of this paper, and by all Booksellers and Postmasters. Persons wishing to subscribe direct with the publishers should write name, Post-office, County, and State in full, and send with remittance in check, P. O. money order, or registered letter to

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning and evening in season for important mails—the down town boxes fifteen and the up town boxes thirty minutes before closing mails at the office.

Holidays the Carrier's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 8½ to 9½ A. M., and from 7½ to 8 P. M. Sundays from 8½ to 9½ A. M.

Any irregularities in the Carriers' department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window,) when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days, or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

The public are earnestly recommended to procure Stamped envelopes with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus endorsed, if not delivered to the person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

First class envelopes of above furnished at $2.80 per thousand.

Stamps cut from Stamped Envelopes cannot be used to prepay postage. The use of such Stamps is punishable by a fine of fifty dollars. Stamped Envelopes, spoiled in directing, are redeemed at this office.
